

People In Costume at Sovereign Hill

Sovereign Hill is a bit different to other museums that I may have visited. For one thing, it is an outdoor museum and secondly, the people who work there dress up in costumes like they are living in olden days.

Some of the people in costumes work in the shops, but other people are actors in the street. They will even do short plays that we can watch.

Sometimes people in costume might come up and talk to me. They might ask me where I am from and how I got to Sovereign Hill. Because they are pretending that they are living in the olden days, they might pretend that they don't know what a car or a bus is. I will talk to them politely.

It's good to talk to the people in costume because they can answer any questions I might have. If I hurt myself, get lost or just want to find something, people in costume can help me.

I will remember that they are actors just having fun.
